THE UNITED STATES ARMY TRAINING AND DOCTRINE COMMAND BAND

The United States Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) Band serves as an outreach asset for the United States Army Training and Doctrine Command. Members of the band have passed a highly selective audition, and are among the finest musicians in the Army band program. The majority of band members have studied music at some of the finest colleges, universities, and conservatories of the United States and abroad. The TRADOC Band performs numerous concerts in support of local, regional, and national events, including festivals, inaugurations, and both city and state commemorations. The band's various ensembles frequently travel throughout the country, performing several concert tours each year. In addition to its outreach mission, the band also serves as the primary ceremonial unit of Forts Eustis and Story, supporting numerous military ceremonies, and performing for visiting American and foreign dignitaries.

TRADOC Jazz Orchestra

The TRADOC Jazz Orchestra is a classic big band with a contemporary flair. Comprised of exceptional jazz musicians within the TRADOC Band, the TRADOC Jazz Orchestra performs public concerts and educational outreach in continuing the tradition of America's greatest original art form, jazz. With a diverse repertoire that includes the classic big band sounds of Duke Ellington and Count Basie, as well as bebop, Latin, contemporary jazz and patriotic selections, concerts by the TRADOC Jazz Orchestra are designed to entertain all types of audiences.
